

JAGGER
SUZY

POLITICS AND BUSINESS CORRESPONDENT
The Times of London

Education:

Suzy Jagger holds a Master's degree from London University.

Professional Experience:

Suzy is Politics and Business Correspondent for The Times of London newspaper.

She has been employed by The Times for eight years, having worked as the Business News Editor – responsible for driving the day-to-day news agenda for the business pages of the newspaper – and as the US Business Correspondent, based in New York.

During her American posting, Suzy led the paper's coverage on the US banking crisis and the collapse of Lehman Brothers. She was also part of the US election team, covering the black vote in the Deep South.

Prior to working for The Times, Suzy reported on capital markets at the Daily Telegraph newspaper where she uncovered the insider dealing scandal at The Mirror newspaper. As part of The Mirror's attempts to move on from the scandal, they hired Suzy as City Editor.

Suzy is not a journalist born and bred. On leaving university, Suzy spent three years in the City working as a derivatives analyst.
